A BRIEF HISTORY

The Troy State University System National Alumni Association had its genesis in 1890, just three years after the founding of Troy State Normal School. The first graduates were determined to form an organization that would preserve friendships and promote their alma mater. Those ideals have transcended more than a century of change as the state's fourth teachers college developed into a worldwide university system.

Following the awarding of the first diplomas in May 1888, an organized alumni association emerged in 1890. It was reorganized a year later with 28 charter members, with steady growth ever since. Today's alumni association officers are elected every two years. The elected officers are the president, vice president and treasurer. An alumni board of directors is comprised of the association's officers and alumni representatives of TSU-Troy, TSU-Dothan, TSU-Montgomery, TSU at Phenix City and TSU's sites maintained through University College. Board members serve three-year terms and meet quarterly to conduct association business.

By providing numerous scholarships each year, sponsoring alumni and student programs, and supporting alumni chapter development, the association continually serves The TSU System. Outstanding alumni are recognized through the annual alumni of the year awards which are presented at homecoming and through the chapter of excellence awards given to individual alumni chapters and members at annual meetings.

The prose which follows on the next pages chronicles the development of The Troy State University System National Alumni Association. This history is adapted from the writings of Mary Enzor Bynum, former Presidents Edward Madison Shackelford and Charles Bunyan Smith, Rick A. Stetson '72 and Van D. English '82.

HUMBLE BEGINNINGS

The Troy State University System is a product of the normal school movement of the 1800s. By 1881, a normal school served every quadrant of Alabama except the southeastern part. In November 1886, a bill calling for a normal school in Troy was introduced to the Alabama Legislature and guided to passage by Troy's legislators, Representative S.J. McLeod and Senator A.A. Wiley. Governor Thomas Seay signed the bill on Feb. 28, 1887, which can be cited as the institution's chartering date.

According to Troy State University's centennial history by Van D. English '82, the legislature changed the name of the normal school to Troy State Normal College in 1893 and authorized it to grant bachelor's degrees. By that time, an alumni association was already established. Mary Enzor Bynum, a member of the English department faculty during the 1930s, is credited with writing the first history of the alumni association as part of "The First Fifty Years of the State Teachers College" by former President Edward Madison Shackelford.

TIMELESS IDEALS, SPIRITED LEADERSHIP

According to Bynum, four people received diplomas at commencement in late May 1888 from Troy Normal's first president, Joseph Macon Dill. While the diplomas issued between 1888 and 1893 were granted without legislative consent, an active alumni association formed in 1890. The association reorganized in 1891 with 28 charter members. The first alumni association president was Edgar M. Wright, a graduate of that year, who remained a guiding spirit until his death in 1935. A building on the TSU campus bears his name.

The purposes of the alumni association as stated in 1891 were "The mutual improvement, the keeping green in memory the friendships and pleasant incidents of school life, and the promotion of our beloved Alma Mater, all of which we do resolve to do with all the power at our command." These ideals still provide a good description of the alumni association after a century of existence in one form or another. Many early alumni association plans were slow to materialize, but one of the early successes was in the area of athletics. On the suggestion of Clarence L. McCartha in 1910, the alumni association assumed a note of $275 for the newly organized athletic association to develop a ball field and tennis courts on the north side of campus.

The legislature changed Troy Normal's name for the second time in 1929 from Troy State Normal College to Troy State Teachers College. An unsuccessful effort started in May 1930 to begin publishing an alumni bulletin. The alumni planned for the first issue to be an alumni directory which, it was hoped, could be published by the college. The directory was completed in fall 1932, but was never published because of a lack of funds in the college treasury.

The year 1930 was significant with the adoption of the Alma Mater song which was written by alumnus Kirven Solomon, son of Ruth Shackelford Solomon, also a Troy State graduate. Not much historical record exists of alumni activities from the late 1930s to the late 1940s except that activities lagged during World War II. Former President Charles Bunyan Smith wrote in his history of Troy State University that alumni activities moved forward with "great vigor" during the years that followed the war.

A NEW ERA

A period of major alumni involvement began with alumnus Roy E. Jeffcoat writing a new alumni association constitution which was adopted at the association's fall meeting of 1947. In 1956, the alumni association began a fund-raising drive to buy an organ for the proposed Smith Hall Auditorium. The organ was installed in 1962 and was dedicated to former music department faculty member Mary Vic Mauk at homecoming ceremonies in 1962.

On the heels of the alumni association's first significant fund-raising drive to purchase the organ, other dynamics were at work within the legislature to rename the institution Troy State College to reflect the college's expansion into other academic disciplines. The college also began granting master's degrees in 1956.

From 1965 to 1968, the alumni association was engaged in one of its biggest endeavors ever with the securement of $100,000 toward the construction of a men's dormitory. The building was named Alumni Hall in honor of the many contributions by graduates. The legislature granted university status to Troy State in 1967, a move followed in 1968 by the board of trustees authorizing President Ralph Wyatt Adams to establish the TSU Foundation. The Foundation through an annual fund-raising drive and other efforts has been a source of constant financial support from alumni and others during the years which have followed.

"THE BEST IS YET TO COME"

A full-time alumni affairs office was created in 1975. Bob Cauthen '73 was named as its first director. He organized alumni tours, reunions and chapter expansions. Through the efforts of the TSU development and alumni offices, an alumni publication titled The Troy Statement was created. The first magazine was followed by The Alumni Association Bulletin and the tabloid-format AlumNews, and returned to magazine format in early 1996. Cauthen was followed by others in the position of alumni affairs director. People who held the position include: Rick Stetson '72, Dave McCracken '71 and Debbie Coppinger. Dianna Lee '85 returned to her alma mater in 1994 to run the alumni affairs office.

Troy State University's emergence into a worldwide system in the 1980s resulted in the most rapid alumni growth period in the university's history. With independently accredited campuses in Troy, Dothan and Montgomery, a branch campus in Phenix City and military sites around the world, the alumni roll has grown from 25,000 in 1980 to more than 80,000 in 1996.

In recent years, the transformation of homecoming into a week-long celebration culminating with tailgating before the homecoming game is a spectacle to behold. Homecoming has become one of the university's best alumni relations tools by bringing alumni back in record numbers. The move from NCAA Division II to Division I/I-AA has also been good for involvement by bolstering attendance of TSU sports events. Alumni chapter involvement and new chapter development also reached an all-time high during the 1990s. By the end of 1996, the number of alumni chapters will have tripled since the beginning of the decade.

With a foundation of excellence more than 100 years old, future growth and development is ours for the taking. True to the phrase from Robert Browning's Rabbi Ben Ezra used on the occasion of the Centennial Celebration, "the best is yet to come" for The Troy State University System and the National Alumni Association.

THE TROY STATE UNIVERSITY SYSTEM AT A GLANCE . . .

The Ralph Wyatt Adams Administration Building was completed on the Troy campus in 1988 to honor the man who guided Troy State's development into the third-largest university system in Alabama. Adams was president and chancellor from 1964 to 1989. The Adams Administration Building houses almost all of the administrative offices for the Troy campus and The System.

The Sorrell Chapel has been described as the crowning jewel of the Troy campus. Built in 1982 from a bequest by the Jeff and Anise Sorrell family, the chapel was designed for weddings, non-denominational services and other appropriate events. Tucked away in a pine thicket near the golf course, the chapel's beauty and seclusion make it one of the most serene spots on campus.

An old English phone booth outside the Adams Administration Building on the Troy campus is a source of charm and uniqueness. It is a visible symbol of The System's international connections.

Bibb Graves Hall, completed in 1929, was one of the first buildings on the Troy campus. The tiered spire atop the building has always carried the name Palladium in remembrance of the Pallas Athena in ancient Greece. This designation was one of the first in a long series of names and titles relating the university to its town's namesake.

Larry Blakeney, center, became Troy State University's winningest football coach during 1995 when the Trojans posted an 11-0 record—the team's first undefeated regular season ever. The Trojans have been successful at competing with other teams in NCAA Division I/I-AA since moving up in 1993 after years of success in Division II.

Troy State University has remained true to its teaching roots during the information age by developing ways to meet student needs using new technologies. Distance learning through interactive methods is popular throughout the United States, but The Troy State University System has been a pioneer of this technological innovation in Alabama.

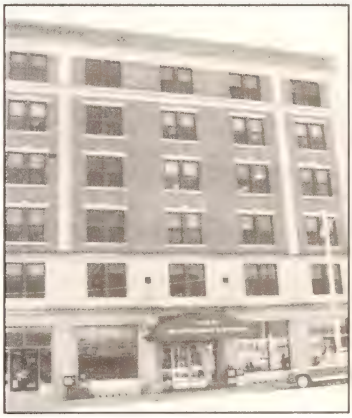
The Pied Pipers, a theatre-for-youth ensemble, celebrated its 25th anniversary of touring elementary schools and arts festivals in 1995. The group was established by Dr. David Dye of the speech and theatre department, and performs a variety of children's plays and fables.

The Sound of the South is a perennial favorite of Troy State University alumni and fans.

Troy State University at Phenix City is a growing branch of the Troy campus. TSU-PC serves the Phenix City and Columbus, Ga., areas with more than 1,000 students enrolled in programs that work around their schedules. Like TSUM, the Phenix City branch primarily serves the adult learner, especially as a provider of graduate degree programs.

Troy State University is a major provider of bachelor's and master's degree programs to members of the military and their dependents through its presence on military bases around the world. Internationalization of the curriculum and the student body, primarily at the Troy campus, is another source of The System's uniqueness. Flags from around the world are displayed on the Troy campus as a symbol of The System's international presence.

Troy State University Montgomery, like TSUD, emerged from the university's expansion into outlying communities to become an independently accredited part of The Troy State University System. TSUM, in Whitley Hall and other locations throughout Montgomery, primarily serves adult learners and has developed a reputation as Montgomery's "evening university."



Troy State University Dothan is an independently accredited unit of The Troy State University System. Ralph Wyatt Adams Hall is one of two buildings completed in 1990 on a new campus location north of downtown Dothan.
